EXPERIENCE

Backend Developer Intern

Generation Alpha (Hybrid & Part-time)

May 2024 - Present

- As a backend developer at Generation Alpha, I am currently engaged in a challenging and innovative project where I utilize my expertise in Node.js, Express.js, and MongoDB. My role involves designing and implementing robust backend architectures that ensure seamless data flow and efficient performance.

- In addition, I have hands-on experience in Java, which enhances my ability to build scalable and high-performing applications. My responsibilities include developing RESTful APIs, managing database operations, and collaborating with front-end developers to create a cohesive and dynamic user experience.
- Through this project, I have honed my skills in backend development and gained valuable insights into modern web technologies and best practices. My commitment to excellence and continuous learning drives me to deliver top-quality solutions that meet and exceed project requirements.
